Continuing information on the Supreme Court's decision on sexual orientation: Moving to redefine the human person in the law endangers Religious freedom. Those who simply believe in the truth of the human person as revealed by God – a truth also acknowledged by people of essentially all cultures and religions for all of human history are suddenly being "bigots". People have been punished for acting on their belief in marriage or the truth about male and female – they've been sued, lost their jobs and had their business ruined. Christian schools, hospitals and charitable institutions could be threatened and lose access to public funds, non-profit status or licenses to operate. This has already occurred with Catholic agencies being forced to discontinue adoption and foster care, all because of their belief that children do best with a married mother and father. Unfortunately, we can expect persecution and marginalization for holding these views to only intensify. (Deacon Roger)
